ELEVENTH CIRCULAR FOR ICES20 – Article Submission for the Proceedings

30 January 2019

Dear participants of the ICES20!

Almost four months ago we had a wonderful conference, thanks to your very rich panels and very diverse and inspiring scholarly presentations. This conference saw numerous novelties! We were extremely happy, together with Mekelle University management, the IES and the International Organisation Committee, to have been part of this event. For us it was a milestone. We thank you for your contributions to the presentations and the organisation of the panels!

We took some time for organisational reasons. As it was announced on the ICES20 closing sessions, we are preparing the publication of the proceedings of this conference. All submitted papers will go through an academic reviewing and editing process, and the technical and formal frameworks needed to be prepared. As the expected number of submissions is very high, we had to establish a system which allows us to work on the articles efficiently. Now this has been achieved: You already know our submission site for abstracts. The same system can now be used for the submission of your articles - see our detailed instructions attached with this circular.

We cannot guarantee the publication of every paper, as this will depend on the successful completion of the academic reviewing. But we will be happy to support you in the process. Please try to respect our instructions to the maximum, to avoid unnecessary additional editing and corrections, and please do make sure that you let your paper be checked by an English native speaker before submission. We depend on your help in this, as this is planned to be a reputable book publication.

The proceedings will be published by Mekelle University, but in cooperation with international publishing houses, which will assure the distributions in all relevant countries, from African countries of the region to Western and Asian countries. This will assure also the availability in the libraries which are interested in our field of studies. In addition we will prepare the electronic publishing, after the book publication.

The deadline of submission should be, as announced in our closing session, not too late, so that we can speedily enter into the reviewing and editing process. Please submit your article by 30 April 2019.

We wish you a very happy, fruitful and happy new year!
We are looking forward to your papers!

Best Regards,
